Cheap Delicacies for Small Appetites.

It falls to the lot of most people to cater to the small appetites of the small family, and small appetites, who are necessarily small, and who require food in small quantities, daintily prepared and served. In the house of a small family, the art of providing little dishes that embody economy, nutriment and variety, these few hints are given. Restaurants where dinner is served only to be had are on the increase, and many of their patrons would enjoy similar fare in their own homes by a little change in cases where abundance from food is not practiced from other motives; hence we commence with a few dainties a la vegetable.

Egg Cutlets.—Cut small a firmly-boiled egg, cut a table-spoonful of bread-crumbs, the same quantity of grated cheese, a pinch of curry powder, salt, pepper, and garnish with fried parsley.

Savory Rice.—Theobald mixture, with the addition of chopped parsley and thyme, can be delicious in very thin pastry, shaped into balls or rolls, and fried or baked. They are very delicious, and any scraps of pastry may be used, but must be thin.

Cheery a la Parisienne.—Cut the white part of a hard-boiled egg into equal lengths in a bundle and boil in water—just to cover, with salt and a bit of butter until tender. Then drain and dry. Then pour over the liquor with an ounce each of four and butter, and at the last moment pour in a few drops of lemon juice or vinegar. Lay the celery on toast and pour the sauce over it.

Macaroni Mould.—An ounce of well-boiled macaroni cut small, and the same weight of bread-crumbs and sliced cheese to be mixed together in the highest degree of cream and tomato sauce, or conversely, one egg, salt and cayenne. Fifteen minutes in a grease tin—a small cake-tin—in a moderate oven will convert this into a tasty dish.

Macaroni with Tomato Sauce.—Boil some macaroni in the usual way, drain and add boiling water with a little salt and butter, then drain and cut it up. Butter a shallow dish, and pour over the macaroni, then pour over the sauce, which is made of tomato sauce—or the converse will do, just make the tomato sauce with browned macaroni, and browned cheese, and browned butter. Garnish with fried or roasted frites.

BRIDES AND BRIDEGROOMS.

Carrying the Cere—Bride Race in a California Colony. A wedding ceremony in the village of Galahals was as follows: Early in the day after the marriage, the bride and groom, with their friends, assembled at the house of the newly-wedded couple, bringing with them a basket of fruit, which was placed on a table. The young husband, on being brought to the door, had the bride firmly fixed to his back, and with it in this position he had to run the round of the town, at least the chief portion of it, followed by a number of men to see that he did not drop his burden. The bride, on her part, was allowed to do so being that his wife should come after him and kiss him, and as he was running, he was to carry his load a considerable distance. This custom was very strictly enforced. This custom was very strictly enforced.

The majority of the negroes live on the products of agriculture and stock-raising. There are no traders in the colony. In Central Africa, except the dwarfish Watwa and Akka. Though their implements are made of wood, they are very good. The Watwa and Akka are the most important grain they grow. It is cultivated in all parts of the colony. REMARKABLE JOURNEY.—The Pioneer of India publishes an interesting account of a journey of exploration to the north of the Himalayas. He arrived at Lake Loh in April, 1895, and having got together a caravan to carry supplies, continued his journey. The same month he proceeded southward, taking a region described as most barren. For eighty-two days he and his caravan were in the mountains, and he was unable to furnish supplies. At the end of the journey, he and his caravan were in the mountains, and he was unable to furnish supplies.

A Good Thing in Lemnada.

"This is a lemonade, is it not?" inquired a light-haired gentleman blandly, as he stepped up in front of a stand on the circus grounds yesterday. The proprietor replied that it was ice-cold lemonade, and the gentleman threw in the information that the price was five cents a glass. "I'll take a glass, if you please," said the gentleman, and he was placed before him. "If there is anything in my food," he continued, "I'll take a glass of your lemonade." The proprietor replied that it was ice-cold lemonade, and the gentleman threw in the information that the price was five cents a glass.

PLAGUE OF SPAINS.

The entire lower portion of the Peninsula is at present plagued by a most extraordinary visitation of snails or garden slugs. They come from the hills, and are everywhere on the board walks, streets, etc., only at night, and they cover the roads and walks by the millions. The people are very annoyed by them, and they are everywhere on the board walks, streets, etc., only at night, and they cover the roads and walks by the millions.

A SAVAGE MARRIAGE.

How Young People are Wedded in New Guinea. It may interest women to learn that the islanders of New Guinea are married not according to their own inclinations, but according to the wishes of their parents. They are married at a very early age, and are afterwards forbidden to associate with their future husbands. Both must avoid all contact with the members, both masculine and feminine, of the family, and the bride is about to enter. Their wedding ceremonies are characterized by a savage people of the tropics. Adorned with the most beautiful ornaments, the bride is conducted at night in a torchlight procession through the village. One woman carries her on her back, while another holds her arms, as though she were a captive, and leads her by the nose to the house of her betrothed. This is a symbol of slavery—a souvenir of the ancient servitude of the islanders to the Europeans.

A Baseball Sermon.

Rev. Mr. Woodcock, popularly known as "The Deacon," in his sermon up the creek, made a few remarks pertinent to baseball. Pointing out of the window at a game in progress on the adjoining Willamette, he said: "See that fellow, the bird cage on his head standing like a straddle-bug behind the bat. He is not playing baseball, he is playing a game of hide-and-seek with the ball, because he isn't playing ball. He can't play. He imagines he can, of course. He imagines he can, of course. Fond du Lac lawyer once set out to argue a case before Judge McLean, and was trying very hard to force conviction on a certain law point when the judge interrupted him impatiently with, "I have already made up my mind on that point, and there is no use of your wasting time and mine. If you don't like my decision you can take the case to the Court of Errors."
